ENERGY MATTERS

CONFERENCE FOR TENNESSEE PROFESSIONALS

MONDAY, OCTOBER 24, 2016 AT 8A.M.

UNIVERSITY OF MEMPHIS CECIL C. HUMPHREYS SCHOOL OF LAW

In celebration of Black Energy Awareness Month (BEAM), the Tennessee Chapter of the American Association of Blacks in Energy (TNAABE) will host an Energy Matters Conference for Tennessee Professionals on Monday, October 24, at the University of Memphis Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law.

Spend the day learning from energy regulatory professionals, touring a Memphis Light, Gas and Water Liquefied Natural Gas facility, networking at an evening reception with your peers, and earning CLE and CEU credits.

If you practice or want to work in the energy field, this is your chance to get firsthand information from experts on the federal, state and local level including:

- Federal Energy Regulatory Commissioner (FERC)
Colette D. Honorable, Esq.
- Tennessee State Energy, Agriculture, and Natural Resources
Committee member, Senator Lee Harris, Esq.
- Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) Vice President of Operational and Regulatory Assurance and AABE National Treasurer, Dwain Lanier
- President of Dyson Engineering and National AABE
Legislative Committee member, Al Dyson
- Vice President and General Council of Memphis Light, Gas and Water, Cheryl W. Patterson, Esq.
- National AABE President and CEO, Paula Glover
- U.S. Senator for Tennessee, Lamar Alexander
- U.S. Representative for Tennessee's 9th Congressional District, Steve Cohen

The logo for the American Association of Blacks in Energy (AABE) is prominently displayed at the bottom center. It features the letters 'AABE' in a bold, stylized font. The 'A' and 'B' are filled with a red and white horizontal striped pattern, while the 'E' is solid red. The logo is set against a background of blue and white industrial pipes or conduits that recede into the distance, creating a sense of depth.
